Missionary Methods St Pauls Or Ours [EBOOK]

(1) He supported himself and his colleagues by working with his own hands. (2) He expected the churches founded by him to be self-supporting from the beginning. (3) He encouraged those churches, poor though they were, to contribute to the needs of others As an apostle, Paul had every right to expect his converts to support him.

PAUL'S MISSIONARY STRATEGIES. - caspin4jesus

It is interesting to speculate what would have happened, if, at the end of his first missionary journey, St. Paul had hastened back to Antioch to entreat for the assistance of two or three presbyters to supervise the growth of the churches in South Galatia, pleading that unless he could secure this help he would be unable to enter the open door which he saw before him; or if instead of ordaining elders he had appointed catechists, keeping the administration of the sacraments in his own hands.
