Types of counselling and psychotherapy - BACP

"The creation of a relationship of safety and trust is an essential first step in CBT, as in any form of therapy". In both these approaches, the relationship between client and counsellor is similar by means of the counsellor being congruent and both would use the skills of reflection, paraphrasing and summarising.

The main counselling approaches: What are they?

Congruence is the most important attribute in counseling, according to Rogers. This means that, unlike the psychodynamic therapist who generally maintains a 'blank screen' and reveals little of their own personality in therapy, the Rogerian is keen to allow the client to experience them as they really are.
