"Margaret Cargill's background as a linguist and research communications educator and Patrick O'Connor's experience as both research scientist and educator synergize to improve both the science and art of scientific writing. If the authors' goal is to give scientists the tools to write and publish compelling, well documented, clear narratives that convey their work honestly and in proper context, they have succeeded admirably." Veterinary Pathology, July 2009 "[The book is] clearly written, has a logical step-by-step structure, is easy to read and contains a lot of sensible advice about how to get scientific work published in international journals. The book is a most useful addition to the literature covering scientific writing." Aquaculture International, April 2009 Writing Scientific Research Articles: Strategy and Steps guides authors in how to write, as well as what to write, to improve their chances of having their articles accepted for publication in international, peer reviewed journals. The book is designed for scientists who use English as a first or an additional language; for research students and those who teach them paper writing skills; and for early-career researchers wanting to hone their skills as authors and mentors. It provides clear processes for selecting target journals and writing each section of a manuscript, starting with the results. We have attempted to present clear and complete step-by-step instructions for the writing of a research paper and to give models for all necessary research forms. Our arrangement outlines each step in the research process and puts all information concerning each step in the process together in the same section; everything about bibliography is in one section; all information about footnotes is in another, and so on. Having taught the techniques of the research paper for many years, we have often felt the need for such a book as this one. We have attempted to write in such a way that the instructions will be simple enough for the high school student and yet complete enough for the graduate student. The experienced research writers should be able to profit from the suggested techniques and the numerous models for correct form.
