A sulcata tortoise is very much like a tank or a tiny bulldozer. She will knock down anything in her path, so if you have lawn furniture, you might want to rescue it from the tortoise. The walls of their yard should be very sturdy and 24 inches above ground. They should be a whopping 12 to 24 inches below ground, too. Yup, these tortoises love to dig.

As an owner, it is your responsibility to ensure that the foods fed during summer are abundantly rich in Vitamin A. This particular vitamin becomes depleted during hibernation, as it is stored in the tortoise's body, and is drawn on while it is asleep. Offer carbs, such as carrots, squash, and alfalfa. Avoid fruits.

Keep your tortoise's habitat toasty and damp, like the warm countries these pets come from. The degree of heat and humidity in the habitat will depend on their breed: Russian Tortoises do best in slightly warmer, drier environments with about 50% humidity; while Greek Tortoises like it slightly cooler and wetter,

Humidity levels for Russian tortoises must be kept relatively low. An ideal humidity level runs between 40% and 50% to keep your tortoise in tip-top shape. Whether your tortoise is in an indoor habitat or an outdoor enclosure, keep a close eye on humidity levels with the aid of a hygrometer.
